23 January 2017

Dear Member of the European Parliament,

We, the undersigned European and global organisations, are writing to you to request your support in advancing legal and sustainable fishing of the European fishing fleet, as well as contributing to financial transparency, and the fight against corruption and illegal fishing, by supporting full transparency in relation to EU vessels granted authorisations to fish outside EU waters.

Specifically, we urge you on Thursday 2 February 2017 to support the provisions in the PECH report on the Regulation on the sustainable management of external fishing fleets, which will establish an EU-managed public database of fishing vessels registered in the EU that receive such authorisations and their owners (amendment 69).
Call on the European Parliament to support transparency of the EU external fishing fleet

Such transparency of European fishing fleet activities is essential because the EU fleet operates in the waters of developing coastal States in the Atlantic, Indian and Pacific Oceans and off the coast of West and Central Africa, aided by EU funds of EUR 145 million annually. The scale of the EU’s fishing activities abroad is such that its operations can have a significant impact on the long-term conservation and management of global fish stocks.

On 5 December 2016, the PECH Committee supported the creation of the first public register of authorisations for vessels fishing outside EU waters. This proposed public database will include several key pieces of information such as vessel name, flag, type of authorisation and period, unique vessel identifiers (IMO numbers), as well as the beneficial ownership details.

The vote in favour is in line with current positions of the European Parliament on the revision of the 4th anti-money laundering directive. In autumn 2016 the ECON/LIBE draft report and DEVE opinion both supported full public disclosure of beneficial ownership information. It is also in line with the Parliament position on the previous revision in 2014 that required every Member State to establish ownership registers that were fully in the public domain. Creating this sectoral obligation does not, of course, replace the need for a cross-sectoral register of beneficial ownership for companies and trusts.

Moreover, it is also coherent with the growing momentum on EU and international beneficial ownership transparency:

- The UK, Slovenia, Denmark, France, Bulgaria and the Netherlands have set up or are currently setting up public databases.
- 2013: The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD)\(^1\) recognized that a lack of transparency and access to beneficial ownership information is a major indicator that tax crime and related offences may be present.
- 2013: G8 Members committed to compiling comprehensive data on beneficial ownership of their companies\(^2\);
- 2014: G20 Members\(^3\) adopted a 10 point policy on how they will increase transparency of beneficial ownership of companies and trusts, including the commitment to establishing central registries. This is a G20 high priority.
- 2016: United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) recommended that financial investigations should be developed to uncover broader criminal networks and reveal beneficial ownership structures in the fisheries sector (25th Session of the CCPCJ)\(^4\).
- 2016: At the 4th Open Government Partnership Global Summit\(^5\), partners committed to ending abuse of anonymous companies by reducing the opacity around corporate ownership.

As an economic leader Europe has an obligation to ensure its fishing fleets comply with global transparency standards. We therefore call on you to support the PECH proposal and thereby promote sustainability and global financial transparency and tax governance.

Sincerely,

Lasse Gustavsson, Executive Director, Oceana in Europe
